

Mortification: Writers' Stories of Their Public Shame

---

By Robin Robertson

HarperCollins Publishers. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Mortification: Writers' Stories of Their Public Shame, Robin Robertson, A collection of stories from some of the world's greatest writers about their own public humiliation. Humiliation is not, of course, unique to writers. However, the world of letters does seem to offer a near-perfect micro-climate for embarrassment and shame. There is something about the conjunction of high-mindedness and low income that is inherently comic; something about the very idea of deeply private thoughts - carefully worked and honed into art over the years - being presented to a public audience of dubious strangers, that strays perilously close to tragedy. Here, in over eighty contributions, are stories about the writer's audience, the fellow readers, the organiser, the venue, the 'hospitality', or the often interminable journey there and back. Then there are the experiences of teaching and being taught, reviewing and being reviewed, of festivals and writers' retreats, symposia, signing sessions, literary parties and prizes, the trips abroad, with all the attendant joys of translation and, finally, the bright worlds of television and radio that can bring so many more people to share in your shame. These are the best stories: those told against...

READ ONLINE
[ 8.79 MB ]

Reviews

Certainly, this is actually the very best job by any author. It really is rally exciting through studying time. You may like how the blogger write this pdf.

-- Rudolph Jones MD

Completely essential go through ebook. I was able to comprehended almost everything using this created e pdf. You will not sense monotony at anytime of your time (that's what catalogs are for relating to if you request me).

-- Timmothy Schulist