The Chair recognizes the gentlelady from South Dakota, Ms. Herseith Sandlin. Ms. H S. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. ERSETH ANDLIN Mr. Secretary, welcome. If you look at my district, the entire State of South Dakota from end to end, whether it is our vast fields of corn and soybeans on the eastern side of the State, wind across every part of the State, and the great forests of the Black Hills in the west, South Dakota embodies the idea that we need a diversified approach to our na-tional energy policy and in particular we need to take advantage, as Ms. Solis is saying, of new opportunities for renewable energy. So as we strive to meet our national energy needs, we must con-tinue to recognize I think that rural America has much to offer; and rural States should be at the center of the...
